About two o'clock Sunday afternoon, says the Paterson Guardian, a man named George Watson, a carpenter, was strolling along the Passaic Falls half drunk, when he suddenly took it into his head to onto Sam Patch's famous leap from the falls. So he deliberately climbed up on the iron bridge which crosses the chasm, and before anybody could prevent had jumped off the dizzy height, and sped through a distance of fully eighty feet to the boiling flood below. A number of persons saw the fearful leap and hurried to the spot, expecting to see a dead body floating on the water, but to their astonishment Watson came up safely but sober, and hastily clambered upon the large, square rock below the bridge, where he sat powering and shivering with fright at his foolhardiness. He was too much unstrung to swim across the basin to dry land, and so had to try to clamber up through the narrow crevice near by. A large crowd soon gathered, with every appliance to extricate him from his precarious situation. Watson was completely exhausted when they dragged him out by his friends.

George Oplyke has accepted the Presidency of the Oswego Midland Railroad, in place of D. C. Littlejohn, resigned. A change in the entire control of the road seems to have become necessary on account of the financial troubles that have arisen under the former management. Mr. Oplyke refused the Presidency of the road unless $5,000,000 were raised to pay off its debts and build its missing connections. A compromise was arrived at, by which he agreed to accept if $4,000,000 were raised; at last accounts $3,700,000 had been pledged.

The trial of Benjamin F. Butts, and Andrew M. Clark, for publishing an obscene, vulgar and immoral paper, has begun in the Court of Quarter Sessions in Newark. The jury promptly returned a verdict of guilty on one indictment. There are four other indictments upon which they will be tried.

Edward E. Dudley, the son of Russell Dudley, shot himself in the heart at the foot of the hundred steps, foot of Franklin street, Jersey City, on Saturday night, and died on Sunday. It is understood that the act grew out of a love affair. Deceased was twenty years old.

The North Belleville Bridge Co. are about selling their bridge over the Passaic river to Bergen and Essex Counties, as per authority obtained from the Legislature; the freeholders have not yet decided, but the price has not been agreed upon.

At Shark River, Mr. J. W. Bond, of New York, has purchased the Bennett farm of 112 acres for $35,000 and proposes to erect a boarding house capable of accommodating 500 guests.

The Wyoming Herald is a new paper just issued, devoted to the real estate interest of that town. O. H. Pierson & Co., of 9 Pine st., New York are the publishers.

Hon. F. T. Frelinghuysen is expected to deliver the Decoration Day oration in Jersey City.

GENERAL NEWS.

THE TORNADO IN IOWA.—The storm which swept over Iowa on Wednesday of last week was more disastrous than supposed. Reports from different sections give accounts of a great destruction of property. The Methodist church at De Soto was badly damaged and the roof blown off. At Stuart a man was killed by the lightning. Nine miles west of De Soto several houses were overturned, and in one instance the inmates were badly injured. At Hanover the Methodist church was totally wrecked. The most vivid imagination could not have pictured the devastation and ruin wrought within two hours. Such a wind was never before experienced. Scarcely any lightning flashes were visible, and only an occasional loud peal of thunder was heard. The rain fell in torrents, not in drops, but sheets. The whole country was flooded to the depth of several inches, and it is feared the corn already planted has been washed out. The destruction of life and property was awful. Thus far the names of seventeen killed and twenty-three injured have been given, and more will be heard from. Houses were carried away or demolished, horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, and fowls killed by the hundreds, timber snapped like reeds, fields devastated, and the ruin and suffering in scores of individual instances might be given. At a place in Washington County a school house, in which were about thirty children, was overtaken by the tornado, and the wind rushing into the building lifted it up and knocked it about like a shuttlecock. The sterner of Washington preached almost exclusively about the disaster and its attendant sorrows on Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Williamson, of the First Presbyterian Church, claimed that it was a special punishment Providence sent on the people for their sins.

The Gettysburg Katalysine Spring Company has decided to raise one million dollars by the sale of bonds secured by the company, including the springs hotel and horse railroad, to provide for placing indicative stones on the battlefield. This course is taken in consequence of aid solicited from various State Legislatures having been refused. Indications to commemorate the position of the troops and noted generals of the struggle, will be located by the Battlefield Memorial Association, of which Gov. Hartman is President.

Official reports from San Francisco received in Washington on Saturday state that about half the Modocs, being whipped and hard pressed by Hasbrouck, have surrendered unconditionally. The surrender includes Capt. Jack's most noted warriors, whose epithets names have figured in print for the past six months. It would seem that the Modoc war ought soon to be ended.

James W. Wallace, the celebrated actor died Saturday morning in a sleeping car on his way home from Aiken, South Carolina. Mr. Wallace was born in the year 1818 in London, and very nearly his whole life has been devoted to the stage. He died a rich man, his property consisting principally of real estate at Long Branch.
